REFRESHING LOYALTY

The loyalty of Great Britain's colonies has always been a subject of interest to the United States. The bond between the parent and colonial offspring is deep-rooted and never wavers. It is a secret that I have never been able to fathom. I have heard many explanations, all of them good, but none sufficient in itself to provide an entirely satisfying answer. Yet the fact remains that in times of stress they rally to the defense of their king with treasure and blood offerings.

A DIFFERENT FEELING

The United States acquires colonial holdings and at once a movement begins for independence. Surely our treatment of these dependents measures up to that which Great Britain accords its foreign subjects, yet with the exceptions of Ireland and India there is never any apparent desire to cut loose from her apron strings. We grant our colonies just as large, and perhaps a larger measure of freedom, yet they seem to feel our rule is galling and restrictive.

The Philippines are a notable example of the truth of these remarks. Every since we acquired the islands our little brown brothers have resented our guiding hand until the day came when we have promised them their freedom.

I seriously doubt the ability of the Filipinos to successfully govern themselves. I more seriously doubt the advisability of relinquishing sovereignty over them; and without laying claim to be gifted with second vision I can envisage the time when our act will come bouncing back to our great discomfiture. We need the islands as a measure of national safety and the day on which we part title to them that same day will begin a colonization of Asia.

Builders Of City Hold Rally Meet

Richmond builders and contractors gathered last night at an enthusiastic meeting in the Builders Exchange in connection with the home building and improvement campaign being staged in Richmond under the auspices of the Richmond Chamber of Commerce.

E. M. Sanford, president of the Chamber of Commerce and an official of the Builders' Exchange presided over the meeting and introduced Charles Park, an official of the FHA who is directing the campaign here.

Under plans agreed upon last night, contractors and builders will register at the campaign headquarters which is in the Chamber of Commerce building. SERA workers are in the field, contacting householders as to their plans for reconstruction and rebuilding work. The builders will then receive these reports and will visit the homes to aid the home owners in the work.

Park highly praised the SERA workers who are assisting in the campaign. He declared that these men are doing fine work in the house to house canvass here and are of a great assistance to both home owners and to officials of the campaign.

Further announcements dealing with the drive will be made at a later date, it was stated.

Federal Aid To Be Asked For Projects

A new booklet to carry Richmond's message far and near will be published in the near future under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce. It was decided at yesterday's meeting of the directors.

Walter T. Helms, chairman of the publicity committee for the Chamber, said new and interesting developments in Richmond warrant the special publication, which will go to members and to many persons outside of Richmond. It will deal with the achievements of the Chamber, with the port and with other matters of interest, it was said.

J. T. G. Melville, field representative for the Federal Housing Administration, said he current campaign for better housing by the FHA and the SERA in which the Chamber is cooperating.

Theodore Madison, vice-principal of the Richmond Union high school and dean of boys, will be the honored guest of the Richmond Chapter of DeMolay for boys at a meeting tonight in Masonic hall.

McKinley Lodge of Masons has turned the evening over to the DeMolay boys. Elton Wallin, master councillor of the order, will be master of ceremonies.

The speaker of the evening will be Walter Siegel, a graduate of the local high school who is at the present time connected with the juvenile courts of San Francisco.

Facilities of all local schools will be guests of the boys during the evening.

A banquet will follow the meeting.

ing is already developing definite results, and that if it continues as it has started tremendous results will be accomplished.

J. A. McVittie, city manager, reported to the board on the projects for which he has asked support from the Federal government in connection with the new work-relief fund of $4,800,000. He said these will include roads, streets, sewers and harbor facility improvements totaling in cost between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000.

On motion of J. A. Christie, division superintendent of the Santa Fe, the board went unanimously on record as favoring the Pettengill bill, an act before Congress which seeks to bring about a more satisfactory adjustment of conditions between rail and water carriers.

The National Re-employment Service, in both Solano and Contra Costa county, requests that private industry and individual employers give them more time when calling for men on their rolls, now on relief, for private employment.

It is asked that the prospective employers give a few days, at least 48 hours notice, for the filling of their requirements in taking men from the relief rolls to private industry, rather than the few hours which have been given at times in the past. For example, five men were called for at five o'clock in the evening, to report early the next morning. This was obviously impossible, as the men had to be called in from distant points for the particular job.

The speaker of the evening will be Walter Siegel, a graduate of the local high school who is at the present time connected with the juvenile courts of San Francisco.

Facilities of all local schools will be guests of the boys during the evening.

GENERAL WALKOUT IS NEAR

45 Mile Auto Limit Is Held Invalid

SAFETY NOT SPEED HELD BIG FACTOR

According to a decision rendered yesterday at Sacramento by the Third District Court of Appeals, California has no arbitrary highway speed limit.

In the test case, T. J. Moseley of San Francisco won a habeas corpus order freeing him from a five-day sentence for driving 70 miles an hour in a Mazda coupe.

COURT'S DECISION

Improved highways and motor conditions and safer motor vehicles were taken into consideration together with confusion of present motor vehicle laws in the decision written by Justice John A. Plummer.

Three sections of the law, one calling for "careful and prudent speed," a second establishing a 45-mile limit, and a third declaring speed in excess of that limit is prima facie, but not conclusive, evidence of law violation, forced Justice Plummer to conclude:

"The Legislature has not adopted, under all conditions, a maximum speed limit... but has provided a method for safeguarding the highways."

SLOW SPEED DANGEROUS

The justice called his decision a "middle-of-the-road" rule, reminding the Highway Patrol which fought the case that slow driving is also dangerous.

Naval Air Armada to Start Hop

HONOLULU, T. H., May 8. (UP)—The United States' entire air force in Honolulu today awaited a take-off signal for the greatest mass flight in history, a 120 mile hop to Midway Island by 12 seaplanes.

Two hundred officers and pilots stood by for the order that will send the huge air armada roaring away in a spectacular phase of the "war games" now being conducted by the United States fleet in the North Pacific.

NAVY TAKEOFF

The take-off was expected about 6 A. M. Wednesday.

Terse confirmation that the flight had been ordered by Admiral Joseph Reeves, commander in chief of the fleet, offered any official's only comment on the undertaking.

Every move in preparation for the flight was completed in secrecy and with swift haste, duplicating in detail war-time conditions. There were few visible signs of activity at Pearl Harbor, where the planes were stationed. Yet mechanics were swarming over the air, fleet orders were being studied, and plans for the flight were being consummated with maximum efficiency.

FLIGHT

Leading the flight will be the six giant seaplanes which last year established a distance record for massed flight, crossing from San Francisco to Honolulu, a distance of 2,410 miles.

It was learned the armada included several newly assembled planes, the latest type in naval service and refinement on the V-10 squadrons which made the flight to Honolulu. Pilots and mechanics have rushed conditioning of the new ships, hurrying to complete required hours in the air before the Midway flight.

CAPACITY LOADS

It was believed that each of the 12 planes in the hop will carry 12 passengers.

CONFESSION IS MADE IN TORCH DEATH

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., May 8. (UP)—Investigators announced tonight that a Reverend candy manufacturer and his son had "confessed" the kidnapping and torch slaying of an unidentified workman in a plot to secure $12,500 insurance.

"It is the most amazing crime in the history of Massachusetts," District Attorney Warren L. Bishop of Middlesex county said.

ARE INDICTED

Frank Di Stasio, 51, and his son, Anthony, 23, both indicted on murder charges late today, allegedly lured a workman into the father's automobile in Boston's south end Monday night and drove to a desolate spot at Lake Boone at Hudson where the victim was clubbed with a crowbar and cremated in the car.

Father and son allegedly hoped to split the $12,500 insurance that had been taken out in Frank Di Stasio's name—$9,000 of it within a few weeks—in the belief he would be identified as the victim.

RING FOUND

STRIKE VOTE OF SHIPPING IS PREDICTED

SAN FRANCISCO, May 8. (UP)—A general maritime strike paralyzing all coast shipping will be voted upon by the powerful and newly organized Marine Federation within the next week, it was announced tonight.

The 26 unions and 35,000 men comprising the federation will be asked to decide whether they will walk out in support of the coast oil tank ship strike, now nearly two-month old.

WALKOUT SEEMS CERTAIN

That the walkout would be voted seemed an almost foregone conclusion, inasmuch as organizers of the Marine Federation in Seattle already has declared "100 percent" support of this strike.

The powerful I. L. A. led by fiery Harry Bridges "left wing" also has declared its support of the walk-out.

COAST SHIPPING TROUBLE

The coast shipping industry already faces labor difficulties in the Pacific Northwest where lumber strikes threaten a major tie-up. Union dock workers have refused to handle any cargoes obtained with non-union labor.

S. M. Kelley, secretary of the federation, said that decision to call the strike vote had been reached after Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins and other administration officials had failed to answer union pleas for federal intervention.

GOVERNMENT IS WARNED

A mediation board named by Madam Perkins and two department of labor conciliators previously withdrew from the settlement effort.

Last week the six unions directly involved in the tanker strike and officers of the Marine Federation, wired President Roosevelt.

Administration Is Assailed By Father Coughlin

CLEVELAND, Ohio, May 8. (UP)—A "banker minded" Roosevelt administration was assailed in stinging terms by Father Charles Coughlin, Detroit radio priest tonight as he opened a drive to build up the political power of his National Union for social justice.

Speaking before a huge audience, the priest laid most of the ills of the world on the Federal Reserve System, the American Bankers Association and the "misconceived policies" which he declared had been the chief cause of the depression.

He denounced the administration of the Federal Reserve System and said the National Union would fight for establishment of a national government bank controlled by the people.

Conejo Mike Is Double Option Race Winner

Mrs. S. E. Ellis chuckled today over the victory of her five-year-old son, Mike, who won the double option race at El Cerrito track.

The victory itself meant much to Mrs. Ellis for Conejo Mike, the victor, was sixth on his first start at this track, but came on late to outscore Doctor Campbell, a hot favorite and pay $20.00 preferred last night.

Preferred odds hit a high average with $17 being the usual return on each race last night at El Cerrito track.

Miss Cardinal, owned by Pete Mosconi, scored his first victory since April 20, last night in the Moraga 5-16 mile stake, beating such file as Harvest Queen, Caperton Cleaver, somewhat of a hurdler, and Smudge Pot, the heavily played favorite. Miss Cardinal was worth $26.40 to backers.

700 ATHLETES WILL COMPETE IN FIELD MEET

FRESNO, May 8.—UP—Nearly 700 of the outstanding athletes of the State had sent in entries tonight for California's greatest athletic meet, the annual West Coast Relays here Saturday.

Leading competitors from high schools, junior colleges, State colleges, universities and major athletic clubs have sent in entries for the meet which has been world famous since its inception in 1906.

In the university class, marks which may be bettered Saturday include the pole vault, high jump, mile relay and two mile relay races.

Bill Craber, holder of both the official and unofficial world's records in the pole vault—the former at 14 feet 4 5/8 inches and the latter at 14 feet 5 5/8 inches—will compete Saturday night against four other vaulters capable of 14 feet or better.

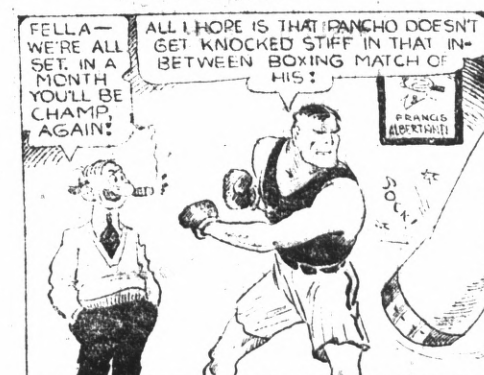

Earle Meadows of the University of Southern California, who bettered 14-3 against Stanford, will be the outstanding competitor in a collegiate field which includes Jack Sand, NCAA champion from San Diego, Bill Sefton, John Hooker and James Plifton, all of St. and Jack Manger, University of California.

Walter Martz, former Fresno State athlete and holder of the world's record in the high jump at 6 feet 9 1/8 inches, may be forced to new record heights to defeat Cornelius Johnson, long-leaved Southern California Negro who has consistently bettered 6 feet 8.

USC relay teams will be shooting for world marks in both the mile and two mile events, both four man races.

SOLONS BEAT OAKLAND NINE IN 2ND GAME

The Oakland A's took it on the nose last night from the hands of the Sacramento Solons in a night game at Sacramento. The Solons nosed out the league leading A's by a score of 4 to 3. Ludolph was on the mound for the Oaks while Flynn hurled good ball for the winners.

Seattle again defeated Portland, this time by a score of 4 to 2. Barrett allowed the Ducks only seven hits.

Jack Lelivelt's Los Angeles Angels snatched second place in the Coast League scramble from the San Francisco Seals as a belated last inning rally gave them four runs and victory. The score, 4-3, was the same as which the Angels won in their first game yesterday.

Pitching a steady game, Jimmy Denmore of the Seals held the Angels scoreless for eight innings, but was pounded unmercifully in the final frame. The Seals, collecting 11 hits from Campbell of Los Angeles, scored once in the third inning and twice in the fifth as Joe Di Maggio homered.

The Missions, still weak in the batting department, dropped their second series game to Hollywood. 6-1. The Stars, hitting for a total of 12 safeties against Walter Beck and Outen, chased in five runs in the seventh inning to give them a safe lead.

Manager Charles "Gabby" Street of the Missions has hopes of bolstering his batting lineup with Daniel "Bud" Hafez, left handed slugger who may be returned to the home town club on option by the Chicago White Sox.

If the deal materializes, Street plans to alternate Hafez and Fred Berger in left field, as well as use the big left-hander as a pinch hitter. At present, Hollis Thurston is the only relief hitter upon whom Street can depend to hit safely with any regularity.

Rowsey Hopes To Be Able to Knock Out John Lewis

SAN FRANCISCO, May 8.—UP—Frank Rowsey hopes to earn a crack at Bob only for the world's heavyweight crown by defeating John Lewis today.

Rowsey, who has been left speed and agility to punch at various times the week, is confident he can stop the Arizona native with a knockout victory.

"I fought Lewis in the south when I was not near the fighter I am today, and I nailed him twice with rights that had him wobbling. If I nail him with the same wallop on Friday night, I'll keep him on the floor for a while," Rowsey declared.

New Law May Force Tanforan To Close Track

SAN BRUNO, May 8.—UP—John Tanforan, manager of the Tanforan race track, said today his track will be forced to remain permanently idle if a proposed legislative measure to reduce the "take" from 8 percent to 6 percent is passed.

"Without wishing to be placed in the light of squawking," Tanforan said, "I must say that, considering the present volume of mutual play Tanforan would have to close its doors if the track take is reduced."

The measure, introduced by Senator (Arthur) Olson of Los Angeles, would increase the State's tax from 1 to 6 percent by taking 8 percent of the track's share.

CONFESSION IS MADE IN TORCH DEATH

The scene of the slaying but when medical examiners pointed out that the dead man's hands were tightly closed—so that a ring could not possibly have slipped off—they became suspicious.

Anthony, arrested yesterday, allegedly made a confession implicating the father, who was missing at the time. The elder Di Stasio was arrested in a Bay Street automobile agency today, while about to purchase a new car and was said to have made a corroborative confession.

MARRIAGE NIGHT

Frank Di Stasio, whose wife died about five years ago, was supposed to have been married to-night, or at least had made such a "promise" to Ethel Riley, 39. But investigators believed the tearful "fiancee" was merely another "tool" used by father and son in a fantastic murder plot.

"This amazing case is solved to our satisfaction," said the district attorney. "Indictments have been rendered and we are ready for trial." It was learned that the father in his "confession" tried to assume entire guilt.

NOT IDENTIFIED

Bishop said the fact that the torch victim has not been identified would be no legal bar to convictions. Investigators were anxious to have that angle cleared up, however, and issued a "possible description of the victim as a man about 55, tall, with light hair and thin face, and possibly of Irish extraction." It was believed he might be either Michael Hartnett, jobless steamfitter, or Bert Wise, a lodger. Both have been missing several days.

TOP SPEED IN COMFORT ALL DAY

... with Nash Cruising Geared Performance!

MORNING TILL NIGHT

NASH has made cross-country, morning-till-night, day-after-day travel unbelievably comfortable... easier on you, easier on the car.

One big reason is the new Automatic Cruising Gear, which goes into action automatically at 40 to 45 miles per hour. It reduces engine speed and engine effort 30%. High speed without high-speed noise and without high-speed gasoline consumption.

And the ride! Smooth, flowing, relaxed. By synchronized springing, balanced weight and 6-passenger, midsection seating, Nash engineering puts a new road under your wheels. Ball bearing steering, another 1935 Nash high spot, does away with driving strain.

Nash is out in front in safety, too. All-steel, one-piece body... super hydraulic brakes... safety, front-hinged, front doors.

Top speed, all day, in comfort. Nash shortens the distance, shrinks the map. Come in and drive this car!

Two Modern Engineering Triumphs

Triumphs of modern engineering genius are the new $35,000,000 Golden Gate Bridge at San Francisco and the 1935 Aeroform Nash sedan shown in the foreground. When completed in 1937, the bridge will have a span of 4200 feet, longest in the world. The towers rise 750 feet, the distance between the bridge deck and the water level will be 250 feet, providing ample clearance for even the superliners now under construction by France and England. The X-bracing principle employed in the bridge towers is also a feature used to give Nash chassis frames their strength and rigidity.

That the air force will play a part in the week-end out of the mystic "military" is destined for this year's best parade. This problem, in brief, involved an effort of the air and surface craft of the United States defense forces to reveal an "attack" by one division of the fleet.

10 ON PLANE

Claws of the planes will vary as much as four to 10 men per plane. Surface craft will carry fuel needed in the maneuver. A stop was planned at Niihau Island, an out-lying island in the Hawaiian group, where the squadron will refuel and reassemble for the long crossing to May Midway.

In command of the maneuver will be Commander E. Wayne Todd, head of the Pearl Harbor air base.

speed could, under certain circumstances, be dangerous.

Officers of the Highway Patrol the decision concluded, have a right to arrest drivers, topping 45 miles an hour. Then Bureau of proof rests on the driver to establish that his speed did not endanger life or property.

NEW LAW PROBABLE

At the same time one house of the legislature gave an implied warning it will favorably consider a new rigid speed law.

AMENDMENT DEATH

At almost the same time the Senate voted 29 to 7 against a motor vehicle code amendment to remove the 48-mile limit section from the present law. The highway patrol is expected to ask new legislation to close the speed gap opened in court.

HEY CHILDREN, CIRCUS COMES TO TOWN SOON

The circus arrives in Oakland tomorrow, travelling aboard special steel double-length railroad cars, with a population of hundreds, scores of horses, caravans of camels, herds of elephants, and countless other specimens of wild animal life, the great Al G. Barnes Wild Animal Circus will arrive about daylight for a three day visit.

The circus is an itinerant affair that, for the greater part of the season, visits a new town almost every day, detaining, erects its canvas city, delights multitudes and then entrains again and skips away to other towns and cities. There will be two performances each day, starting at 2:00 P. M. and 8:00 P. M. and the doors to the big tent will open at 1:00 P. M. and 7 P. M. Twelve acres of tents will be erected at 45th and San Pablo.

Twenty-two tents of varying sizes are to be erected to house this great enterprise, the largest of these, of course, being the main tent, or "Big Top" as it is generally referred to, which seats several thousands of people comfortably.

The Fiesta of The Rio Grande, a gorgeous and spectacular presentation, a "glorious fairland of penitence and enchantment," will serve as a prelude to the circus. Sings and a parade, a triumph in color and production, this great, grand event is the crowning feature in the eventful career of The Al G. Barnes Circus. Hundreds of men and women, animals of every description participate in this stupendous offering.

Dancing girls, singers, cymbals and trapezes will be seen and heard. Forty thousand dollars was spent by the show this year for elaborate decorations for this beautiful present.

WILD ANIMAL ACTS
Then follows the trained wild animals. Pabel Stark and her husband, Benal Stark, and her husband, Walter McLean and four other men, will perform elephants, tigers, lions, and other wild animals. The circus is a real horse show of the West.

"SEQUOIA" ON FOX THEATER BILL FRIDAY

Tomorrow the Fox theater offers "Sequoia" an outdoor picture, has been acclaimed throughout the nation as one of the most unusual pictures ever filmed.

"Sequoia" is entirely different from any picture that has ever been made. It is not an animal picture, as is commonly conceived, but it is the life story of two animals, enemies by nature, but brought into friendship by Jean Parker, youthful nature lover.

The animals, "Sequoia" and "Gato," Malibu is a "giant" buck, who is king of the deer in the west. Gato is a full grown puma who forever fights for his pal Malibu.

"Sequoia" deals with the adventures of Miss Parker, who is an expert in raising the deer and puma from names to actuality. They not only overcome this natural foe but find out each other as no animals have fought.

Russ and the romantic lead opposite Miss Parker, and Samuel Hinds, a full Hurst and Ben Hall have other important roles.

Laurel and Hardy in their last comedy screen "TIT FOR TAT" will also play on tomorrow's program.

TWO HITS TODAY
"Carnegie" with Lee Tracy, Sally Eilers, and Jimmy Durante plays for the last time today at the Fox on the same program with S. S. Van Dine's "The Case of the Murdered Man," which stars Paul Lukas, Louise Fazenda, Ted Healy and others.

George Levaggi
Richmond Man
Called By Death

Funeral services will be held Saturday morning from St. Paul's church, for the late George F. Levaggi, 2339 Downer avenue, who died at his home yesterday morning.

Deceased was 27 years of age and was a native of San Francisco. He was a graduate of the local schools.

The funeral cortege will leave the home at 9 o'clock Saturday morning. Rosary will be recited at the chapel at 8 o'clock Friday evening.

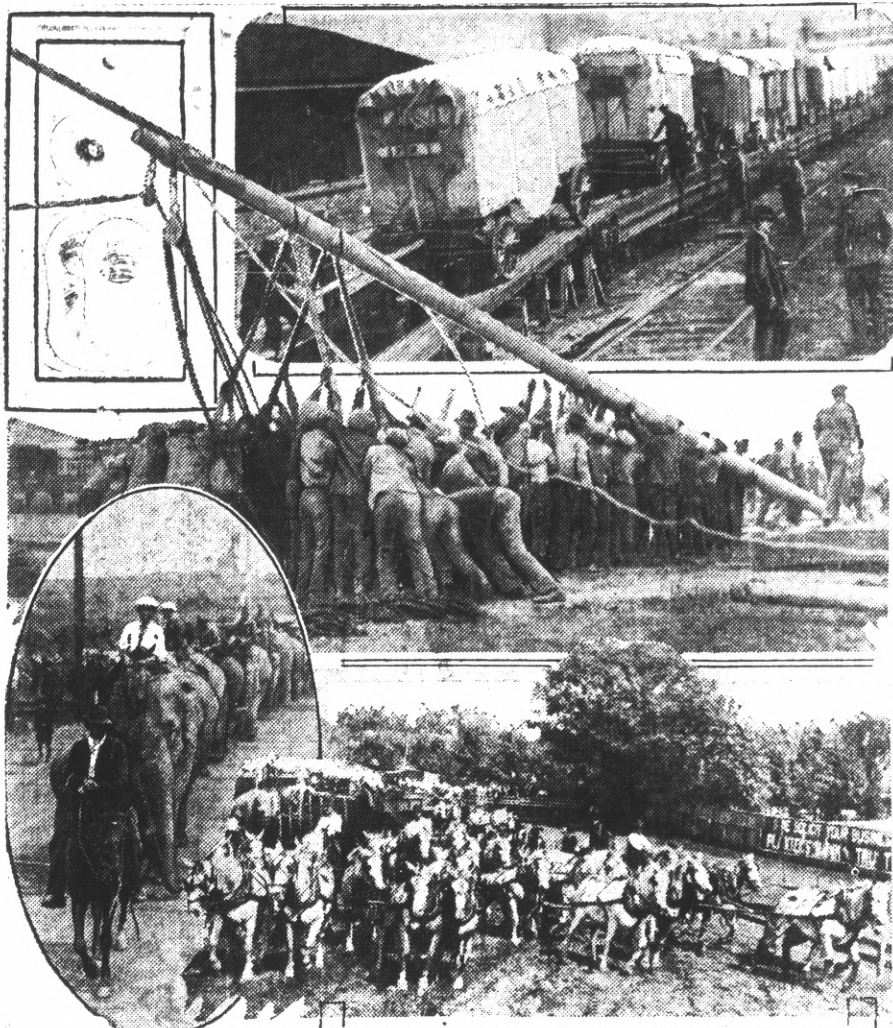

He is survived by his father, Joseph A. Levaggi; four uncles, John and Manuel Levaggi of Richmond, Andrew Anfibolo of Richmond, and John Anfibolo of San Anselmo; and two aunts, Mrs. Rose Wall and Mrs. Della Baumgarden of San Francisco.

He was a member of St. Paul's Catholic church.

MRS. H. O. SCOTT and daughter, Gloria, of Long Beach, who have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Stallard have left for their home.

One of the features in which Al G. Barnes has excelled for years is the "diversified menagerie." It carries the world's largest traveling zoo, and has added many new animals this year.

The Circus Is Coming

CHILDREN OF the bay area are preparing to welcome the huge Al G. Barnes circus when it arrives at Forty-fifth street and San Pablo avenue in Oakland tomorrow. Above are some of the scenes of a busy morning when the circus unloads from its special trains and sets up its tents.

County Eagles To Celebrate Mother's Day

In keeping with the custom established by the members of the Fraternal Order of Eagles throughout the United States, members of the Contra Costa county will celebrate Mother's Day on Sunday next, May 12th, in a most fitting manner.

Under auspices of Contra Costa county council of Eagles, presided over by Ralph Cunningham, County Recorder, a parade and program will take place in the City of Martinez.

The parade will start promptly at 10:30 a. m. at the Southern Pacific depot and will consist of the members of the various orders in the county, a number of drum corps and a band.

They will proceed up Ferry street, then along Main street to Alhambra avenue; thence down Green street to the City Park where an interesting program will be given. Noted speakers will address the public on the subject of Mother.

The Fraternal Order of Eagles is responsible for the observance of "Mother's Day" having sponsored the movement some thirty years ago.

HOUSE-PARTY MURDER

CHAPTER I

JOAN moved restlessly about the room and stopped for a moment by the window. Outside, the three pine trees were silhouetted against the gray winter sky. Just one pale lemon sunray, audaciously penetrating the clouds, reflected itself feebly in the girl's golden hair. There was snow in the air, she reflected trying to turn her thoughts from the unpleasant subject at hand, but a sharp remark from the woman in the bed brought her back to the pressing realities.

"Yes, Aunt," she murmured, turning around obediently. "I'm listening."

Harriet Blanes, propped up against a mass of pillows, looked more like a witch than a woman. Her illness had drawn the lines down to dinner," the old woman said peevishly. "Yes, Aunt."

JOAN left the room and slowly went downstairs. In the spacious hall, with its big open fireplace, she found her brother sprawled in a leather armchair, a cigarette drooping from his fingers. Riekey Blanes was a pale copy of his sister, with colorless blond hair, an unhealthy white skin and pale yellow eyes.

"Well?" he questioned, and when she told him of Aunt Harriet's scheme, he sighed. "An unsound idea!"

"You've got to help me!" "How?" He shrugged his shoulders. "And why?" He tossed his cigarette into the fireplace. "I get my legacy no matter what you do. And a darn small legacy, too," he grumbled. "Serve you right to get left."

"Riekey?" Joan's voice trembled. She was near tears. Riekey got up and patted her day you are not engaged to one of the three men I've invited here, I shall disinherit you."

"You had no right to invite them without telling me," Joan said, her lips trembling.

Harriet Blanes laughed sarcastically. "And you had no right to invite anyone without my permission," she reminded her niece.

Joan didn't answer. There was no answer. Aunt Harriet was right. She had invited Timothy on the impulse of the moment. She had met him at a dance in town and she had said suddenly, "Come up next week-end." And he had accepted. But there was no explaining to Aunt Harriet why she had had to ask him, no use telling her that the impulse had been stronger than any fear of disapproval. Even in this moment, she wasn't afraid of her aunt's disapproval, but the news of this house-party, of which she had known nothing until half an hour ago, had distressed her terribly.

Her illness had drawn the lines around her thin-thighed mouth, and her eyes, sarcastic and penetrating, were sunk in deep hollows. In the unrelieved coloring of the room—green carpet, green curtains, green upholstery—her skin itself seemed green, ghostlike.

"You are a fool, Joan Blanes. The old woman's voice was hard. 'Just like your silly father. Heaven knows what he would have done without me. Died a pauper, anyway.'"

Joan didn't answer, but her straight little nose seemed pinched, and her delicate oval face was pale.

"But I'm fond of you," the invalid's voice softened slightly. "So you can take your choice—Rodney, Stephen or William."

Joan shuddered slightly and drew a long breath. Aunt Harriet had always been eccentric, but this house-party was worse than that—it was crazy.

Three men invited, from among whom she was to pick a husband—three men whom she hardly knew, and generally disliked. And a fourth man whom she had never met.

As though reading her thoughts, the old woman sat up straighter in bed and pointed a thin, yellow finger at her.

"This Timothy Riekey, who is he?" she asked shrilly. "I'll tell you. He's a peevish good-for-nothing!"

"An architect, and not worthless," Joan interrupted quietly. But her face was crimson and her hands tightly clenched.

"Peevish good-for-nothing," her aunt reiterated sharply. "But don't remember, Joan—if by Monday you are not engaged to one of the three men I have invited here, I shall disinherit you."

awkwardly on the shoulder. "All right, sis—I was only kidding. Besides, I know you'll always help me out when you're in the dough. I'm on your side, sis. Got to be." He grinned ruefully. "Gosh, how I need money. And if she disinherits you, it won't be in my favor. I know that."

The sudden whirr of a car coming to a stop in front of the house brought Joan to her feet. The first guest was arriving!

A BELL clanged loudly and after a short pause, Meyers, the butler, appeared in the hall walking softly. He opened the door, and a gust of cold wind swept in.

A young man stood on the threshold, a very tall, broad-shouldered young man with deep blue eyes. As he caught sight of Joan, he took off his hat, revealing curly black hair.

"Hello—may I come in?" Joan advanced to greet him, her heart hammering.

"Timothy, this is my brother Riekey." Riekey looked apprehensively at the stranger.

"Well," he remarked slowly, "if there's any trouble, you look nifty enough to be of some use."

"Take Mr. Riekey's bags up to the light green room," Joan said hurriedly to the butler.

Timothy removed his overcoat and brushed back an unruly lock of hair.

"Trouble?" He grinned. "Is something wrong?"

The doorknob, clanging again through the house, interrupted Riekey's answer.

Joan moved thankfully.

"Let me see you before you go

YOUR GOOD HEALTH

By C. N. CHRISMAN, M.D.

Instruction About Child Health One of National Educational Projects Truly To Succeed

AMONG the many national projects that have succeeded is the matter of Child Health. There are now a great number of Child Health Associations, Councils, and Centers, and May 1st is officially designated as Child Health Day. It makes a pivot point about which to group definite educational programs for the welfare of the child's health.

By means of public lectures, exhibits, surveys and the distribution of helpful literature, a marked improvement is now being noted in the incidence of infant and maternity statistics. These efforts began more than a decade ago and have been promoted especially in the cities, though the less frequent programs in the small towns and even more isolated groups have been quite as profitable in results.

The most difficult part of the entire Child Health program has probably lain in the effort to prove that the child's well-being through life depends largely on his care during the months preceding his entry into the world. The efforts along this line are being repaid.

THE attendance in classes arranged for expectant mothers, the definite instruction given on the subject of pre-natal care of both mother and child, and the response that the Child Health Centers in the larger cities have compiled valuable facts in small leaflets that may be had for the asking.

Thus, in a condensed form, in simple and easily understood statements, may be found the information needed by the usual expectant mother. If some of you think it is a waste of time, the same facts must be repeated commonly as new babies, you have only to remember that they are arriving at the rate of several every minute of every day and many of the mothers are quite as new at the job of preparing for them as the babies are inexperienced.

Some of the most pertinent facts connected with this all-important project are the topics of the printed leaflets put out by the Child Health Centers. Most of them are a perfectly natural process, and except for adverse external obstructions, should be entirely safe.

Many women pass through this experience in great concern because they have been told that they should not have children and might even find the process fatal. This is a serious mistake. All the necessary examinations and preparations should be arranged for well in advance. If the mother's condition is not altogether favorable, nothing is gained by adding foreboding to the general nerve strain.

INDEED, if the mother feels too spirited and too nearly normal, it is quite possible that she is absorbing all the energy and the child may be deprived of it. This brings up the fact that the amount of rest prescribed must never be curtailed in order that the full amount of growth may proceed without interference.

Exercise must be adequate to keep the body muscles in good condition and the blood stream clear. It must be remembered that the unborn child needs oxygen and plenty of it. Walking moderately in the fresh air is probably the best way to provide this.

The diet of the mother must be planned to provide all the factors of nutrition for building and developing a new human body. If any of the usual distresses of the pregnant period should become exaggerated, the matter should be reported to a physician promptly. Continuous nausea, heartburn, swelling of the feet and legs, any sort of muscle cramp should have attention, even if it does not mean anything serious.

The expectant mother should be informed that fear and worry have definite physical effects upon her whole system, and it is her task to keep a cheerful attitude for the child's sake.

Guide to Charm CHILDREN NOW LEARN TO CARE FOR OWN HAIR

By JACQUELINE HUNT

OH, DEAR, why doesn't Mary Jane's hair behave? Dozens of mothers have asked the same question over and over again, and dozens of alert young mothers are doing things about it. They are taking their youngsters to expert barbers or hair-dressers for individual hair cuts and they are teaching the child to care for his own hair to keep it healthy and manageable.

Proper care not only encourages the waves and curls in a child's hair, but keeps it silky and alive; that even straight hair will stay orderly and free from tangles for a surprising length of time.

Immaculate cleanliness is essential for even the child's hair. More frequent shampoos than a grown-up's hair, yet it is often over-shampooed which tends to remove too much of the natural oil.

And leaves the hair dry and brittle. Shampoo every two or three days, and keep the child's scalp and hair clean between times by using a small amount of mild hair tonic and brushing thoroughly twice a day.

One clever firm has brought out special hair preparations for children. The gentle-acting tonic for little girls comes in a bottle with a rose-colored label and space is provided for writing the child's name so there will be no mix-ups. Little boys have a special tonic in a bottle with a blue label.

Get a brush for each child and teach him to take care of it. The bristles should be fairly long and flexible, yet firm. Brush the hair gently back and up from the scalp a strand at a time. Be very careful not to "whip" the ends of the hair as this may cause splitting and breaking off. After each strand of hair is brushed, wipe the brush on a clean towel to remove the oil, dust and foreign material picked up by the bristles.

Encourage any tendency to curl by dampening the hair slightly and pressing the waves into place. If the hair is fairly long, curls may be used to advantage. There are all kinds—some a variation of the old-fashioned rags in which your own curls were tied. These make beautiful, natural looking curls. For shorter hair the little metal fellows that look like miniature curling irons are more convenient. Simply brushing over your finger will also encourage natural curls.

To prevent broken ends, occasionally rub a little olive oil, pomade, white petroleum jelly or brilliantine between your hands and work into the ends of your child's hair. If the child's hair is extremely dry a warm oil shampoo may be given regularly.

Blue Is Favorite Color This Spring, But Yellows Are Coming on the Scene

LACES APPROVED FOR DAY, COOL-AIR

By IRENE VAIL

Although this is a blue spring, it promises to be a yellow summer. What with chambrays, accented and chambrays color in any number of materials, and what with all the buttery yellows being offered, alone and in combination with many other shades, a pleasing glow is settling over the scene. Many of the new prints play up yellow — and there are any number of golden straws and bright buttercups and such on black or navy blue.

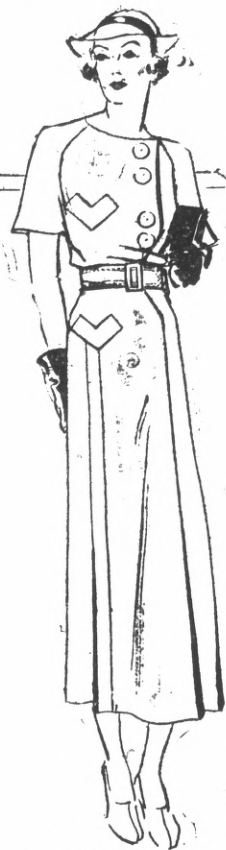

Chanel, a courtier who is closely followed by many smartly turned out Americans, featured baby blue at her mid-season showing. Baby blue tulle was a great favorite with her for evening gowns of the fro-frou type. She also advocated the use of flowers for practically all purposes. Pique and orange flowers continue to be great favorites with her. There will be a good deal of pique, both in white and blue.

The fashion for flowers is even adopted by some women wearing severe tailored tweeds. With a costume consisting of a stunning suit in rough green tweed, with which were worn brown accessories, bright pink carnations were pinned on the lapel. Some of these buttonholes achieved a smart, mannish look with white or red carnations adorning black and white mixture woolsens or plain gray suits.

Sketched today at left is ivory cotton lace cut in swaggar coat silhouette, which accompanies a formal gown of blue chiffon. Navy blue cotton lace fashions the two-piece daytime frock at right. This is effectively styled with a high cut flaring collar posed over a bow of pink belting, a shirt-Mary dress are seasonal, and wide, shaped, long sleeves.

At right of the column, the dress is done in peasant line in a pale blue shade and large buttons and little pockets are details of importance.

Beauty Tips

QUESTION: "I am very much overweight and I have heard of a light diet that I would like to try. Would you please tell me about this—and what I would eat and what avoid? Would not baths help to reduce me? If not, please tell me something else that would reduce me in a hurry." —Lea"

You would make yourself ill in a hurry by trying to reduce on a liquid diet. Occasionally a one or two day liquid diet is an excellent means of clearing the body of waste products, but do not try it for losing weight. Cut out most starch foods like potatoes, hot breads, cakes, spaghetti and fatty foods and sweets. Eat more vegetables like cabbage, beets, greens of all kinds, cauliflower, asparagus, string beans and lean meat. Eat one small piece of bread or a small potato with each meal. If you will send me a stamped, self-addressed envelope I will send you a copy of my booklet, "Slimming Safely." Hot baths will cause a temporary and slight loss of weight through perspiration, but they have no permanent value.

Tasty and Nourishing Dishes for Today

Many Specialties In Desserts Good for All the Year Round

By JUDITH WILSON

IN HOMES where dessert is the most important feature of the meal, the family cook can hardly have too many specialties. Many of these are seasonal, but here are several that you can use over and over again at any time.

Chocolate Fritters

Sift flour, measure one cup and add with one teaspoon baking powder and one-half teaspoon salt. Combine four tablespoons sugar with one well beaten egg. Add one square of melted unsweetened chocolate and one-fourth teaspoon vanilla and blend. Add one-half cup milk alternately with the sifted mixture. Drop from a teaspoon into deep hot fat each time before dipping it into the batter. Turn the fritters frequently during the frying. Drain on unglazed paper. Dust with powdered sugar or serve with orange sauce. This makes two dozen small fritters.

Luscious Orange Sauce

Combine one-half cup sugar, three tablespoons cake flour and a dash of salt in the top of a double boiler. Add three-fourths cup hot water and one egg yolk slightly beaten. Cook for ten minutes over rapidly boiling water, stirring constantly. Be sure the boiling water is at a rolling boil. Add one-half cup orange juice, one-half cup lemon juice, three-fourths teaspoon grated orange rind and one-fourth teaspoon grated lemon rind. Serve hot or cold.

Baked Stuffed Peaches

Use fresh peaches in season, preferably ripe freestones. Or use canned peach halves. Place twelve halves, cut side up in a buttered baking dish. Mince twelve more halves and mix with six crushed macaroons. Add the beaten yolk of an egg and two tablespoons sugar. Use more sugar if fresh peaches are used. Mix well and fill the peach halves with the mixture. Moisten with one-half cup unsweetened pineapple juice, sprinkle with a little sugar and bake in a hot oven for about twenty minutes. Serve hot or cold, with or without whipped cream.

Apricot-Prune Bavarian

Soak one-half pound dried apricots in two cups water until soft; add three-fourths cup sugar and cook to a pulp. Press through a sieve. This should give you two cups of puree. Add one tablespoon lemon juice and two teaspoons gelatin that has been softened in two tablespoons cold water. Stir the gelatin into the hot puree until thoroughly dissolved. Cool and as the mixture begins to thicken, fold in one cup cream whipped until stiff and one-half cup stewed prunes cut into fairly large pieces. Turn into small molds or into a fancy mold. Chill. Serve with sweetened, whipped cream.

Burnt Sugar Dessert

Blend two and one-half tablespoons cornstarch with two cups of cold water. Gradually add two cups boiling water, then cook stirring frequently until thickened. Place one cup sugar in a heavy frying pan and heat slowly, stirring constantly, until an amber colored syrup is formed. Do not allow to become dark. Pour the first mixture slowly into the melted sugar and stir until the sugar is thoroughly dissolved. Remove from the heat, add a dash of salt and one-half cup chopped walnuts. Chill and serve with sweetened, whipped cream.

Dessert Pancakes

These are grand after a light meal. Mix together one cup pre-sifted flour, one-fourth cup sugar and one-fourth teaspoon salt. Add one cup of milk gradually and stir until smooth. Separate the yolks from the whites of three eggs. Beat the yolks slightly and add to the first mixture. Stir in the stiffly beaten whites and two tablespoons melted shortening. Add a grating of lemon or orange rind. Bake on a well greased griddle making the pancakes about five inches in diameter. Turn only once. Remove from the pan, spread with softened butter and jelly, roll up and sprinkle with powdered sugar.

Short Cuts

According to market specialists of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, eggs of good quality weigh about twenty-four ounces to the dozen; they should be clean and fresh and uniform in size and shape; they should have strong shells of uniform color and firm whites, small air cells and well-centered spherical yolks of uniform color, neither too dark nor too pale.

The easiest way to paint chairs is to turn them over and do the legs first. Then set the chair right side up and complete the job. Always spread clean newspapers under any article to be painted.

Always remove the drawers when painting articles with drawers, and paint the drawers separately.

Grated orange rind decorates the lemon juice and grated lemon rind for sponge cake.

You and Your Child

TIRED FATHER SHOULD RELAX THEN SEE KIDS

By JANE HERBERT GOWARD

WILLIAM'S dad is the sort of father who is usually too tired after the day's work to be civil to the children. If they dance around him at play or laugh, he sends them away. If they ask him a question, he generally waves his hand and says, "Go ask your mother."

William, the eldest, keeps away from his father. He knows by now that he is not wanted. The two little girls have this yet to learn. Viola, the elder girl is beginning to understand, it seems. If her little sister rushes forward to great dad and goes and bounces herself upon his lap when he sends them away. Viola holds back a spell. She waits to see how dad receives little sister before she starts forward. She is becoming wary of dad. She does not want to be rebuked by him. She wants his companionship only.

One wonderful thing is that it will be before the baby of the family will also begin to keep her distance from dad. It is inevitable. And after there is no child left to fuss over him or get into his way when he returns from work, will dad miss the attention he used to get? Will he perhaps begin to wonder why his children are not glad to see him?

Here is food for thought, if you happen to be one of those perpetually tired or bored fathers. Perpetually tired or bored, that is, with respect to the children. My advice is, don't hush up the children or send them away lest they get the habit in time of staying away altogether. They are not a problem. You are the problem. You are making them a problem to you.

If you are tired, why not say so and take yourself off to bed? Shut the bedroom door, lie down; try to catch forty winks before supper. Learn to relax. The habit will aid digestion. It will sweeten your disposition. You'll begin to enjoy life and maybe you will begin to enjoy your children.

Mothers too, who feel that their dispositions are going sour, ought to take a little time off daily, and relax.

Keeping Out the Dust

Architects and contractors are considering the possibilities of using double glazed or winter windows to combat the terrific toll in damaged home and office furnishings from the recent series of dust storms west of the Mississippi.

It is argued that winter windows keep out cold air so much more effectively than the ordinary type, according to government statistics, that the same principle would apply to dust storms.

Painting Furniture

If you are planning to repaint furniture, do it indoors rather than out-of-doors. If you must do the painting outdoors, be sure that the weather is dry and that no wind is blowing.

Mrs. Pinchot, Always on the Go, Is the No. 1 Lady Picketer of the Nation

ON THE outskirts of the charming town of Milford, Pike County, Penn., there is a large estate nestled in the hills. A big house, with turrets soaring, looks majestically down on the valley of the Delaware River. Inside this house lives Cornelia Bryce Pinchot, wife of the ex-Governor of the Delaware. This peaceful spot, strange to say, seems to incite a militancy in Mrs. Pinchot which was brought her national attention.

She is the No. 1 Lady Picketer of the nation. Only recently she was at it again, emerging from the Milford home and joining the picket parade of 2,500 strikers against a biscuit concern in New York City. The fact is she led the parade. She always does.

When Mrs. Pinchot leaves her hilly domain you may be sure she has something to say and many things to do. It may be a campaign speech; it may be to lead a parade of strikers. Always, however, she says what she means, and refuses to pull punches. She champions the cause of

MODERN WOMEN

By MARIAN MAYS MARTIN

Playing With Fire While Her Husband Is Away Can Hurt Nobody But the Wife

PLAYING with fire has always been the most exciting game in life. Few who do it escape without being burned or burning another—probably the last person in the world one would care to harm. This is true, I am sure, comes from one of those experienced ladies who is capable of doing much damage.

"My dear Mrs. Martin: My husband is away from home a great deal on business trips. Sometimes I go with him, he travels in his car, but it isn't always convenient. When I am home alone it would be very dull for me if I did not accept the invitations of our friends to play bridge, go to the movies, etc. We are a young married couple and get along very nicely, but I am always the extra woman, or, as, until one of my friends' brother came to stay with her, so now we are an even bulky bunch. My husband doesn't like the new arrangement at all, and has said some rather nasty things about my going around with this fellow. I can't see a bit of harm in it, do you? We don't often go anywhere without the crowd. Once in a while we don't drive straight home from these parties, but I don't see any harm in that—we never go anywhere, but just drive around. My husband wants me to stop going with these people—but what he really means is with this man. Don't you think he is selfish?"—Twenty Nine."

MOST men are selfish—especially husbands, and when it comes to their wives trotting around with other men. You cannot altogether blame your husband for being anxious. He has seen broken up over just such situations. Propinquity is the cause of a good many divorces.

It's hard on you to be housed up when your husband is away, but it's hard on him to be away and have another man escorting you places and driving around with you in these balmy lilac-scented nights.

Is this other man always present? Aren't there places where you can play contract and enjoy yourself without his being there? I would also suggest that when he is escorting you home that you go straight home.

Gossip is not unusual, and some of your friends—as well as your husband—may comment on the growing intimacy between you and your friend's brother. Are there no unmarried women for him to escort, or for you to introduce him to? It's not exactly cricket for you to encourage this man. What have you to offer him in return for his attentions? Nothing that does not belong to your husband.

IT SEEMS to me that it would be an excellent idea to accompany your husband on some of his trips, especially just now when the country is so beautiful and when you need to have the excitement of renewing your interest in him. The situation as it stands is unfortunate, since your husband's objections are bound to make you self-conscious and just a little bit pleased with yourself.

Don't flatter your obliging escort by telling him your husband has honored him by showing a flash of jealousy.

After all the man may simply be courteous to a friend of his sister's. You are the one who holds the key to the situation. A man usually takes his lead from the woman. There's no reason why you should not be able to keep that association on an even keel, but probably, like most women, you are vain and are getting a tremendous kick out of the whole thing. Women are like that, but after all, it's not a thing to be proud of, you are dealing with grown men and playing a game with high stakes. Don't be reckless.

Not every man who plays cavalier to another woman's husband has any wish to be her husband if she were free. You don't need to be told that your husband is the one who holds the trump card.

Have You a Question?

Mrs. Martin will be glad to answer in this column questions of general interest. Mrs. Martin cannot reply individually to every correspondent. Names will not be published. Address her care of this paper.

Trip From Mexico Of New Peach Pact Will Be Signed

NEWARK, N. J., May 8.—Amelia Earhart Putnam dropped out of the sky from Mexico at 10:28 P. M. tonight with a new flying record to be maintained by a crowd of 5000 cheering enthusiasts who tramped the few police sent to hold them.

Within a few moments after her high wing monoplane glided into the glare of the floodlights she was surrounded by a jostling mob. The trip covered 2,070 miles, that no floor—man or woman—ever had flown before, non-stop.

13 MILLION IN SALES TAX FOR THREE MONTHS

SACRAMENTO, May 8.—Sales taxes for the first three months of this year paid to the State Treasury by California retailers have reached a total of $13,000,000. This is $1,350,000 more than the corresponding figure for the first quarter of 1934, according to the State Board of Equalization, in whose office the sales tax is administered.

Deferred payments are expected to bring the total collections for the last quarter up to approximately $11,000,000 as contrasted with the final figure of $12,385,480 for the same period a year ago. This marks an increase of practically fifteen per cent in the yield from the tax.

Commenting upon the tax yield, the board issued the following statement:

"We believe this gain justifies our estimate of a total revenue of $118,000,000 from the sales tax during the next two year period if the rate remains at 2 1/2 per cent and no exemptions are written into the law. Proposals to exempt foodstuffs, except as those may be sold as meals in restaurants, have been analyzed on the basis of sales tax returns during the first year that the law was in force. Statistics show that this proposal would decrease the yield of the tax at least 25 per cent, or $29,000,000 during the

Drive On Evaders Of Tax Is Pushed

SAN FRANCISCO, May 8.—UP—Twenty SIRA workers are being used in the latest drive by the federal alcohol tax unit and the board of equalization on liquor violators.

"The combined efforts have started money rolling into the Internal Revenue bureau," officials said.

A "school" for the relief workers has been installed to teach enforcement. The majority of violations was said to result from ignorance of the complicated liquor laws.

Next two years. "Increasing the rate to three per cent on the balance of property subject to the sales tax would only partially offset this loss as there would be $12,000,000 less revenue, even with the higher rate on other commodities."

The board estimates that the sales tax has been collected from approximately 155,000 retail establishments in California at an administrative cost well under the two per cent of collections allowed by law.

The DAILY WASHINGTON

MERRY GO ROUND

WASHINGTON, May 8.—Believe it or not, but the historic Brown Derby of 1928 is being secretly boomed for another shot at the presidency.

And no less amazing is the fact that Republicans are doing the grooming.

House cloakrooms have been abuzz the last few days with whispered accounts of the quiet lobbying being conducted by a group of Old Guard Republicans in behalf of an Al Smith "fusion" candidacy in 1936.

The most active in this undercover proselytizing is Representative Walter G. (Ham) Andrews, Buffalo Republican.

Al Smith, as a presidential possibility in 1936, so far is not being taken seriously in any quarter. But the politicians do view it as significant that he is being talked of as a contender.

The Liberty League is reported to have a secret plan by which anti-New Deal elements, both Democratic and Republican, would unite to put a ticket in the field next year.

The rulers of the League are strong Smith men, Jonett Shouse, Executive Director, and John Hancock, a founder and heavy contributor, led the Smith forces against Roosevelt in the 1932 convention.

With the Brown Derby in the ring, it would not be unlike them to grab it.

DUST AND TAXES
The wheels of justice grind slowly when it comes to million dollar income tax cases.

Charles E. Mitchell, ex-president of the National City Bank, is one charged with such a violation. He was brought before the Board of Tax Appeals. It created a national sensation.

Since that time more than one year has elapsed. The hearings in the case are on file. Month after month has added to their accumulation of dust.

There are thirteen members on the Board of Tax Appeals. But for some reason they have been occupied with other matters. No decision has been handed down.

NOTE—The majority of the Board of Tax Appeals was appointed under Hoover.

BUSINESS VS. ROOSEVELT
Last week's anti-New Deal firestorm by the United States Chamber of Commerce may mark a milestone in Roosevelt's attitude toward Big Business.

Certainly it will if any of his inside Liberal advisers have their way.

For the barrage of criticism launched at the White House by the business mounts strengthened the Liberal's hand as nothing else in the history of the New Deal. They can now point to the marble Chamber of Commerce sanctuary, costly and discarded from the front windows of the White House, and say, "We told you so."

This incident has helped to drive into the light of day the bitter feud between two of war-time allies between two groups of the President's advisers.

One group has been urging "play ball with business."

Its leaders were Dan Rogers, Marvin McIntyre, Ray Moley. They held dinners, organized advisory councils, slipped the mousetraps into the barometer of the White House, all to get cooperation between the New Deal and Big Business.

The other group was led by the "old" Roosevelt boys and others of the now scattered Brain Trust.

They argued that cooperation with Big Business was essential to "recovery." Then you found that Big Business had a peculiarly one-sided definition which did not at all fit the Webster's dictionary.

They also argued that the President had lost great prestige through out the country by too much temporizing with Big Business. They claimed that he was playing directly into the hands of rattle-roncers Father Coughlin and Huey Long.

Now that the moguls with whom Roosevelt attempted to "cooperate" have turned around and slammed him in the face, Liberal advisers predict that the "play ball with business" days are just so much history. He is not going to turn the other cheek.

"No matter how much recovery is at hand," the Liberals say, "Business will always claim that it is gained 'despite' Roosevelt, and that if left to themselves they could have done better."

So the left-wingers are not thinking the Chamber of Commerce for one of the stiffest breaks in its history—which may turn out to be

NORTHWEST PARALYZED BY STRIKE

PORTLAND, Ore., May 8.

UP—The Pacific Northwest's largest payroll industry gave way slowly tonight to the paralyzing strike of sawmill and timber workers, which not only continued to spread inexorably but began to affect shipping and other business.

More than 1,000 mill hands and lumberjacks were idle, either voluntarily or by compulsion of picket lines. The total was swelled when 1,000 men walked out at Seattle, closing eight of the 12 sawmill plants, and planning to picket and close the other four tomorrow, if possible.

NEW STRIKE
Two more crews of 450 lumberjacks near Olympia struck, while plywood and veneer plants employing 10,000 men were threatened with closure unless an agreement is reached before tomorrow.

The lumber strike spread to truck logging operations in the lower Columbia river district, bringing the idle men there to about 2,000.

COST MILLIONS
The West Coast Lumbermen's Association estimated the strike will cost $4,000,000 in lumber payrolls alone if it lasts 30 days—$2,500,000 in Washington and $1,500,000 in Oregon.

"Should this loss occur, it will be a direct contribution by workers, employers and communities to those of British Columbia and the southern pine area of the United States," said President W. C. Clark.

Many trans-Pacific and Portland-European vessels will be rerouted to Vancouver, B. C., shipping circles reported. Six ships were chartered today to call at British Columbia ports for lumber and wheat.

OBSCURE
Senator Glass' hostility to the Administration's bank reform bill is so pronounced that at the committee hearings he does as much talking as the witnesses.

Carte's carroussell finally exhausted the patience of Michigan's Senator Jim Couzens.

"Senator," he demanded after a particularly lengthy harangue by the Virginian, "just who is doing the testifying here, you or this witness?"

Glass glared. But he stopped talking—for a while.

Richard Dix Is Proud Father Of Twin Babies

HOLLYWOOD, May 7.—UP—

More over, Bing Crosby and Lawrence Tibbett. Make way for another father of twins, Richard Dix.

Two boys were born to Mrs. Richard Dix, the former Virginia Webster, at Good Samaritan hospital this morning. As yet unnamed, they weighed six pounds nine ounces and six pounds, six ounces, respectively, upon their entrance into the world at 8:12 A. M. and 8:20 A. M.

"I'm just twice as happy as I thought I'd be," said Dix, a tired smile on his face. For 72 hours he practically had no sleep, finishing work on his latest picture, "The Arizona" before the children were born.

At midnight last night, the last scene was finished. Dix rushed home and found his wife preparing to leave for the hospital. He rushed the floor until Dr. Chittenden took care of him. His wife and the babies were well, then departed.

CANADA QUIET
No strike threats have been reported in Canada. The minimum wage there is 25 cents an hour, compared with 42½ cents minimum and 58½ cents average in the Pacific Northwest. The A. F. of L. union demands 75 cents an hour, 20-hour instead of 40-hour week and closed shop.

Retail lumber yards, unable to obtain deliveries from mills, were running short of their most salable stock.

Columbia River and Puget Sound shipping was hard hit. Several vessels left partially loaded. Others cancelled arrivals, finding it unprofitable to enter Northwest ports if unable to obtain the usual base cargoes of lumber.

Many trans-Pacific and Portland-European vessels will be rerouted to Vancouver, B. C., shipping circles reported. Six ships were chartered today to call at British Columbia ports for lumber and wheat.

TANKERS OPERATING
Operators of the tank ships recently declared that they considered the strike at an end as all tank ships along the coast were moving. Non-union workers were placed aboard the vessels, although some union men returned to the jobs.

VOTE TO REMAIN OUT
TOLEDO, O., May 8.—UP—The controversy between organized labor and the automotive industry was tossed back into deadlock tonight when employees at the Chevrolet assembly plant here voted against going back to work under compromise plans offered by the company.

By a vote of 1,251 to 605, the workers indicated they desired the strike to continue, automatically continuing also the stalemate which caused 17 General Motors plants to close thru strike or shut-down, throwing 35,000 men out of work.

Federal conciliators, frankly disappointed that the controversy was not terminated by the balloting, announced new efforts to open negotiations would be started in Detroit tomorrow.

by their seizure by a nation which ultimately figures on armed conflict with us. And the pathetic feature of the whole thing is that the Filipino who once enjoyed real freedom under Uncle Sam will find himself in a state of vassalage.

A refreshing instance of colonial confidence has just appeared in public print with the relation of a message from the colonies that the whole empire relies upon the motley country to keep Europe at peace. Without any attempt to dictate the way that result shall be attained, the colonies express supreme confidence that Great Britain is appointed for the task and if she acts in the capacity of peacemaker the war drums that beat so loud and ominously at the present moment, will become mute.

It would indeed be refreshing to see some of our dependencies display the same faith in their Uncle Samuel, than whom there is no more kindly or better intentioned daddy among the nations of the earth.

FINALLY REMEMBERED
The white collared man has been dragged out of his obscurity and poverty through the declaration of President Roosevelt that he is to be taken care of in the five billion dollar work job. The farmer, the laborer and the mechanic have had their wants taken into consideration ever since the nation embarked in the business of charity to a wholesale scale, but the white-collared class got little consideration. If work can be found suitable to the talents and education of these people much discontent will be removed.

PURE PAPER FOR CHESTERFIELDS

They use 300 gallons of fresh water a minute to purify the clean flax linen pulp that Chesterfield paper is made of Champagne Paper Co., mill where Chesterfield paper is made.

Slitting and winding wide rolls of cigarette paper into reels.

Over and over again they boil and wash the pure flax linen shreds before they are rolled out into thin crisp paper and cut into rolls for Chesterfield cigarettes.

Every step in the manufacture and everything about the big modern factory where Chesterfield paper is made is spotless and clean.

Before the paper is shipped to this country it is tested for three things—

- Purity
- Right burning quality
- No taste or odor

There is no better paper made than that used on Chesterfield—another thing that makes it a milder, better-tasting cigarette.
